INPUTS INCLUDE:

The 2 days will comprise a unique blend of facilitation methods to appeal to all learning styles including group discussion, reflection, prefection, best practice tools and techniques, inputs, peer support, practice, action planning, group dynamics, social dreaming and feedback

Transformational 'Next Generational' Coaching

Peter Hawkins explores Transformational Coaching, which sits at one end of a spectrum of coaching which spans skills, performance, development, and transformation. It focuses on helping clients transform how they think, feel and behave, when working on their issues, in such a way that they will also create a 'knock-on shift' in the wider system of which they are part.

Coaching with the System in Mind

How do we ensure that our one to one and team coaching practice focuses on the needs of the team, the organisation and the organisation's stakeholders as well as the coach and their individual clients? How do we as coaches think systematically so that we deepen our impact? Peter will facilitate our thinking in this

Group Supervision

Supervision is 'time out' to review and reflect on your practice as a coach, supported by someone who non-judgementally holds you and your clients safely. Taking time to look deeper into your own practice, deepen your understanding and become aware of potential blind spots in your own and others thinking will contribute to your continuing professional development, grow your expertise and enhance your impact.

Co Coaching and Reflective Beach Walks

Nothing soothes the soul and frees up our thinking like a beach walk! Partner with a trusted fellow coach and help each other explore what matters; gain new insights and perspectives as you stroll the beach, admiring some of Northern Ireland's most stunning scenery and enjoying the humbling effect of nature. Then, breathe, and allow your freshest, finest thinking to emerge.

Reflective Writing Practice:

An exploration of the theory, tools and practice of reflective writing for you as a coach and for use with your clients.
